Past

P. C. H. S. Office

Seniors Ashley Jolly, Rebecca McCarty, Robin Hamilton, Amy Nicely, Beth Warder, and Regina Lambert think their powderpuff football team is number one, while Eva Jane Dunbrack supports the Juniors.

Sophomore Katrina Richards does a cadence routine as the band marches down the road to lead the Homecoming parade to the football field.

Reflections of our Past

On August 26, 1994, Pocahontas County High School opened its doors for the twenty-fifth year to 500 students. With school starting earlier than in the past, some students were reluctant to part with summer vacation. Others, anxious to see their friends, were happy to be back. The freshmen, as usual, needed time to adjust to a new setting, but soon they were part of the gang.

Pocahontas County High School opened in the fall of 1970, combining high school students from Marlinton, Hillsboro, and Green Bank. Since then, more than 2700 people have graduated from PCHS.

A special twenty-fifth anniversary celebration was part of Homecoming activities on October 15. Much preparation beforehand by both students and staff made this special Homecoming a great success. An alumni room with pictures and yearbooks from past years was set up. The first principal, Fred Smith, crowned Mary Ann Carter Homecoming Queen. A special appearance was also made by former mascot, Joe Jonese. Many alumni and present students came out to visit with friends and reflect on their pasts.

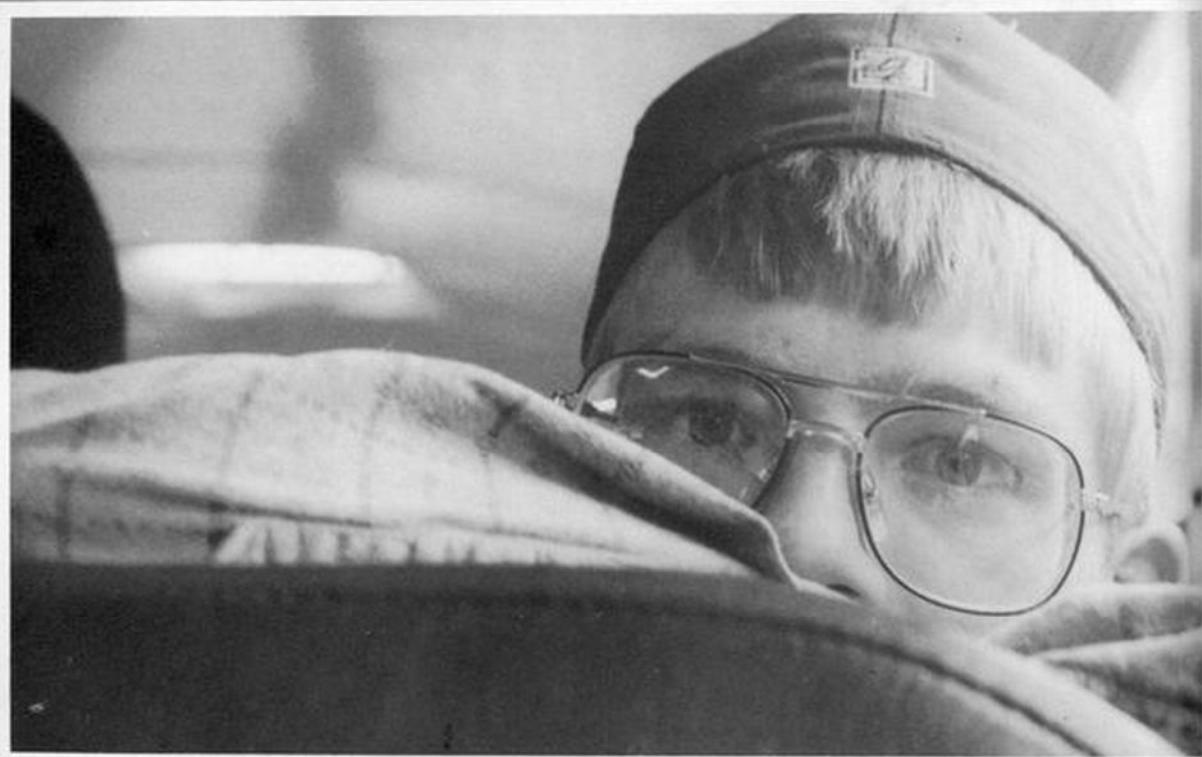

The Warrior defense work together to tackle a Tygarts Valley player during the Homecoming game.

P a s s i n g T i m e

Senior Della Cassell takes a break from playing the bells to cheer for the Warrior football team at the first home football game.

Showing school spirit and their support of peace on 60's/Reggae Day of Spirit Week are seniors Sarita Delp, Sara Lagace, and Wendy Kirk.

Senior Sherry Mick is concentrating on making up a test in the quietness of the hallway.

Seniors Oak Hall, Sean McGreal, Jason Ray, and Shannon Owen and freshmen David Simmons and Ben McNeel are having a discussion, as senior Laura Simmons looks their way.

Junior Mike Hefner thinks about a question on his assignment in American History.

“Warrior Stock” Spirit Week '94

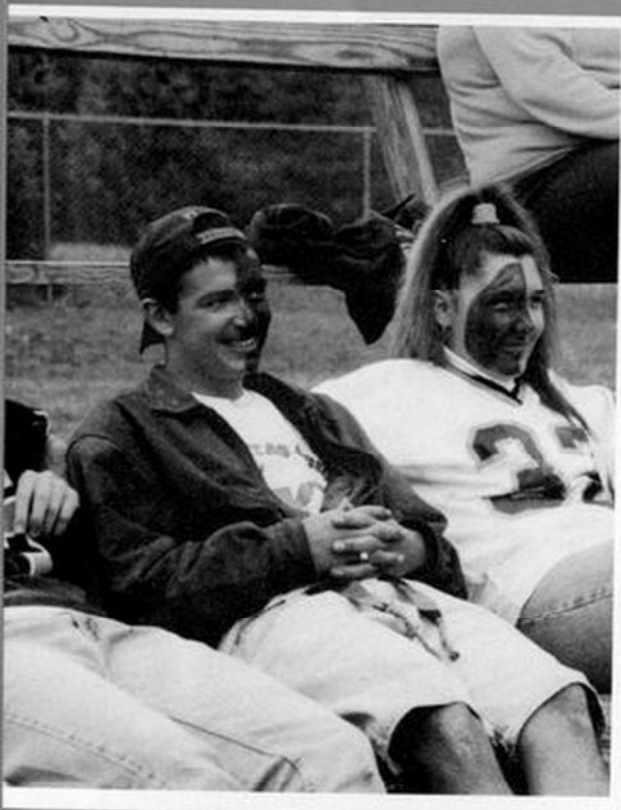

Spirit week was filled with wild costumes, zany faces, and hair-raising fun. The fun of spirit week started Tuesday with 60's/Reggae Day. The halls were jammed with bell-bottoms, peace signs, and daisies. The seniors won that day, then freshmen, juniors, and sophomores. The second day was Toga Day. Many people wore sandals, leaves, and sheets. Juniors placed first that day, then seniors, sophomores, and freshmen. Meanwhile, the sophomores won the bulletin board competition, followed by seniors, freshmen, then juniors. On Wednesday night a bonfire pep rally was held, with the seniors placing first for their skit and the juniors placing second. The sophomores and freshmen had no skit to present. The final day was Maroon and Gold Day. The juniors won that day, then seniors, sophomores, and freshmen trailed behind.

These activities concluded with Powderpuff Football. The seniors were beaten by the sophomores, and the freshmen were beaten by the juniors. The overall winner for Powderpuff Football game was the sophomore class. The overall winner for Spirit Week was the junior class, followed by the seniors, sophomores, and freshmen.

Happy to know they are still #1 are seniors Andi Kinnison, Janelle Friel, Robin Hamilton, Amy Smith, Sharon Tackett, Ashley Jolly, Beth Warder, and Amy Nicely.

Juniors Brandy Cassell and Scharlie McComb look very interested in their deep discussion during the powderpuff football game.

Concentrating on making their class bulletin board the best are sophomores Cindy Jackson and Nathaniel Sizemore.

Junior Jessica Beverage laughs while her coaches, Jason Hicks and Nathan Workman, talk to her about the next play.

Showing off their wild 60's style are juniors Missy Cain and Eva Dunbrack.

Homecoming

Nineteen and ninety four

Our 25th Annual Homecoming carried many traditions as well as a few added festivities in grand style.

The exciting day started with a soccer game held at Stillwell Park against James Monroe. The Warriors came out on top with an 11-1 victory. The day proceeded with an open house and a dinner. The pre-game parade was lead by the band, followed with floats from each of the classes, containing the Homecoming court and past royalty, along with a cheerleader float which featured the first PCHS mascot, Joe Jonese.

The afternoon game with Tygarts Valley also had good results – the Warriors came out on top 34-6.

During half-time the homecoming court flashed their pizzazz as they walked onto the field. As the silence grew from the crowd, king and queen were announced. Mary Ann Carter was '94-'95 queen and Jason Sharp '94-'95 king. They were voted on by the student body.

That evening many enjoyed the traditional "Homecoming Dance" for alumni and students.

The 25th Annual Homecoming was not only a beautiful day but a day to be remembered for years to come.

A few of the first PCHS graduates showed their spirit by participating in the half-time show at the 25th Annual Homecoming.

Leading the band onto the field during the Pre-game parade are majorettes Rebecca Grimes and Kristi Wilfong, along with drum major Becki McCarty.

Assisting with a recovery is junior Phillip Propst, sophomore, Jimmy Holbert, junior Nathan Workman, and junior Johnnie Boggs, at the 30-yard line.

Still showing their style are former Homecoming kings and queens.

Past royalty made a special appearance at Homecoming '94.

Passing the Time

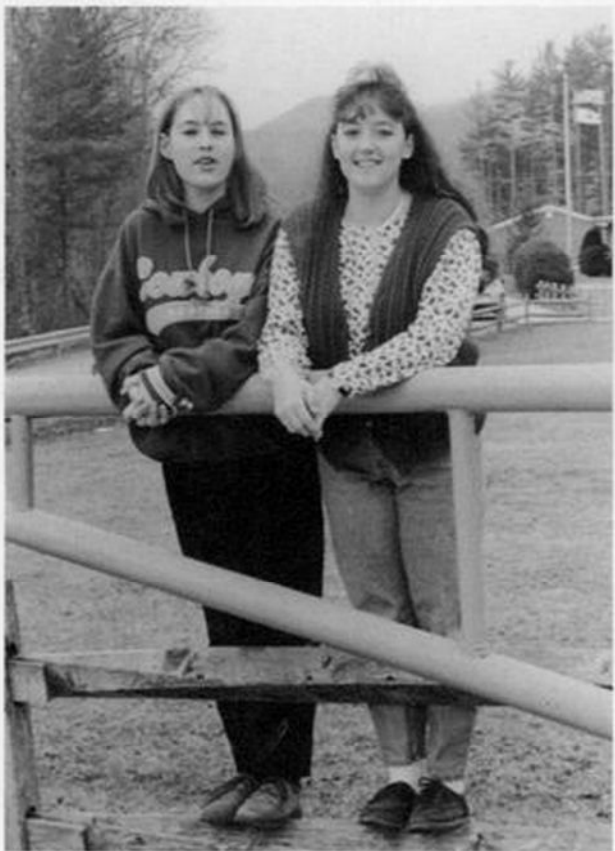

Best Friends . . .

Friends Forever

Best friends can be seen throughout PCHS. Many people only have one best friend; however, that isn't the case with Johnnie Boggs, Chris Taylor, Frankie Burgess, Nathan Workman, and Jamie Warner. They said they all were best friends.

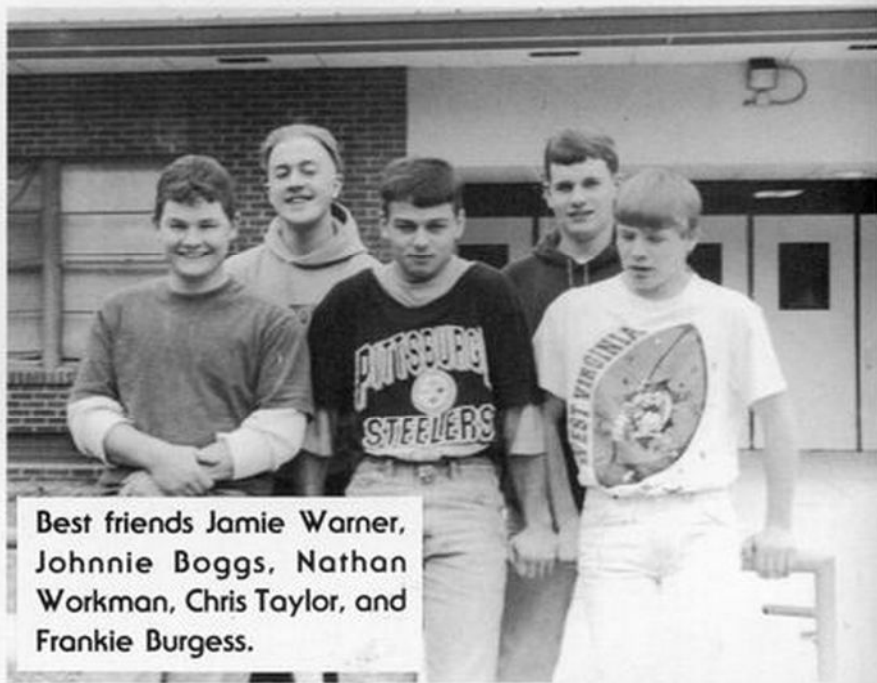

What is a friend? "A person who knows and likes another" is the definition you would find in the dictionary. When students were asked, they had different opinions. They said a friend is someone who you can have fun and laugh with. A best friend respects you, is trustworthy, and honest. A best friend is always there to listen and accepts you for who you are.

Best friends Sharon Morgan and Elissa Corbett.

Best friends John Duncan and Danny Gladwell.

Best friends Jamie Warner, Johnnie Boggs, Nathan Workman, Chris Taylor, and Frankie Burgess.

Best friends Amy Groseclose and Robin Hamilton.

Best friends Jimmy Holbert, Luke Bennett, Philip Anderson, and Paul Barb.

Best friends Andi Kinnison and Amy Nicely.

Best friends Anita Arbogast and Holly Gordon.

Assemblies

In Our Spare Time

This year at PCHS, there were several assemblies held for the students' enjoyment.

First this year, the teachers sponsored a Christmas Program, in which several students were rewarded for their good behavior. Mrs. McGee and Mr. Vance did a wonderful job playing their parts as Santa and Mrs. Claus, respectively.

The second assembly held at school this year was the Senior/Faculty basketball game. Several seniors including Jody Alderman, Andy Beverage, Curtis Browning, Frankie Burgess, John Duncan, Chris Gibson, Brad Miller, Jason Ray, Jason Robinson, Chris Rose, Charles Smith, and Chris Taylor participated along with several teachers.

The third assembly held at school this year was the Sadie Hawkins Day festivities. Fun was had by all as the classes competed against each other to win the spirit stick. The results of the Sadie Hawkins competitions were First place — juniors, Second place — seniors, Third place — freshmen, and Fourth place — sophomores.

Hoping the ball goes in is Mrs. McGee during the Sr./ Faculty game.

Receiving presents for being "good little boys" are Jamie and Travis Warner, Chris Taylor, and Johnnie Boggs.

Observing the Christmas assembly are Aleisha Broce, Andy Beverage, and Matt Moore.

Mr. Ziegler guards senior Chris Gibson during the Sr./Faculty game.

It's "Air Jason Ray," as he tries not to foul against Coach Sheets.

Career and Awards Day . . . "The Need to Succeed"

Career Day and Awards Day both have a common interest — "succeeding."

During Career Day many of the business people from around the county come to the school to demonstrate their line of work to the student body. Some of the people who attended this year were Sam Felton from Burns Motor Freight, Jim Pritchard from the County Extension Agency, and Bill Shank from the Observatory. Students are given time to go around to each of the people and receive information on the careers of their choice, or some like to get information on everything.

Awards Day is a big day for some of the students, mostly seniors. On this day scholarships are given to seniors who have been awarded them, and many other awards are given, such as Math Field Day, Photography Award, and June Riley Award. The awards give the students a reason to try their best in their school work; for example, there are awards given for French and Spanish students who attend competitions.

Both of these events give the student a chance to figure out what they want to do in life and award them on their accomplishments.

Wayne Worth, freshman, gets some information from the County Extension Agent, Jim Pritchard, during Career Day.

Mrs. Stewart presents Andi Kinnison with the "Anno Lee Dean Award" for being the top Business student.

Tosha Combs, freshman, accepts an athletic award from Mrs. Rose.

John Leyzorek, engineer, shows Aaron Cumashot, Jud Eilers, and Luke Burgess his techniques of engineering.

Johnnie Boggs, junior, proudly receives a forestry award from Mr. Burns.

1995 Junior-Senior Prom

"A Dream Worth Keeping"

On the night of May 6, 1995, the PCHS Junior-Senior Prom took place at the Snowshoe Mountain Lodge in the ballroom.

The theme was "A Dream Worth Keeping," and the colors were black and white with a touch of red.

The evening began with a dinner held at Good Time Bobby's. The meal consisted of filet mignon and chicken breast, vegetables, a baked potato, salad, rolls, and cheesecake for dessert.

The evening escalated after dinner at 8 p.m., when the dance began in the ballroom. Music was provided by a guest DJ.

At 9:30 p.m., Jason Sharp and Amy Smith were crowned as 1995 Prom King and Queen.

The prom ended at 11:00 for most of those attending, but some stayed for the post-prom party. The night was enhanced by the prizes that were given away. There were two TV's, two cameras, a CD player, watches, tee-shirts, and music tapes. Free food and gasoline were also given away.

In all, the evening of the 1995 Junior-Senior Prom was very enjoyable and definitely a memorable experience.

Senior Kelly Landis and her date, Brooksie Barnett.

Glenda Teter, senior, and Jay McCoy look like they're having fun at the prom.

Natalie Mickle and Jason Roberts seem to be having a wonderful evening.

Seniors Beth Warder, Amy Smith, and Ashley Kelly strike a pose for the camera.

Mr. and Mrs. Rexrode are loving every minute of the prom.

After being crowned, Jason Sharp and Amy Smith share their dance as the 1995 Prom King and Queen.

Crutches didn't stop senior Rosalie Morris from coming to the prom. Rosalie and her date take a moment to sit and rest.

dressed up and looking sharp is Junior Charles Kinnison. The cowboy hat adds an excellent touch.

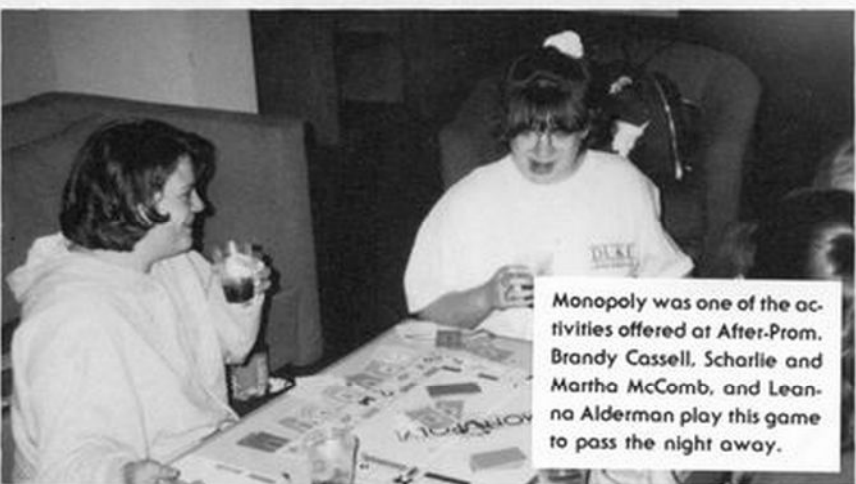

Jimmy Campbell, Frankie Burgess, Chris Campbell, and Johnnie Boggs "get down" during prom.

had a really great time at prom: It was the best out of the last three," quotes Sharon Morgan as she poses for prom pictures with her date, Brian With-

Senior Stephanie Mullenax takes a rest. Her date was Samuel Jackson, junior.

Monopoly was one of the activities offered at After-Prom. Brandy Cassell, Scharlie and Martha McComb, and Leanna Alderman play this game to pass the night away.

Enjoying the evening are a group of juniors who decided to sit together amongst friends.

'94 FASHION FASHION

PCHS

Make a Statement

Warriors

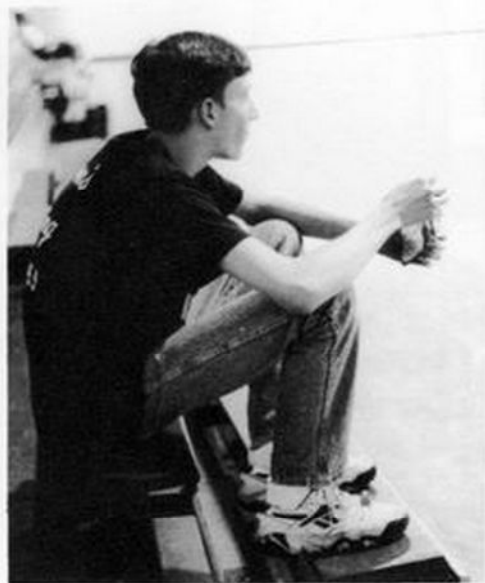

Here at Pocahontas County High School, most everyone tries to "make a statement" with what they call "fashion."

When students arrive at school, they often look around at what everyone else is wearing. Obviously, not all teenagers have the same taste in clothing or other things such as music, hair style, or shoes.

Some of the different clothing styles were Levi jeans, teeshirts, flannels, sweatpants & sweatshirts, bell bottoms, and tie-dyes.

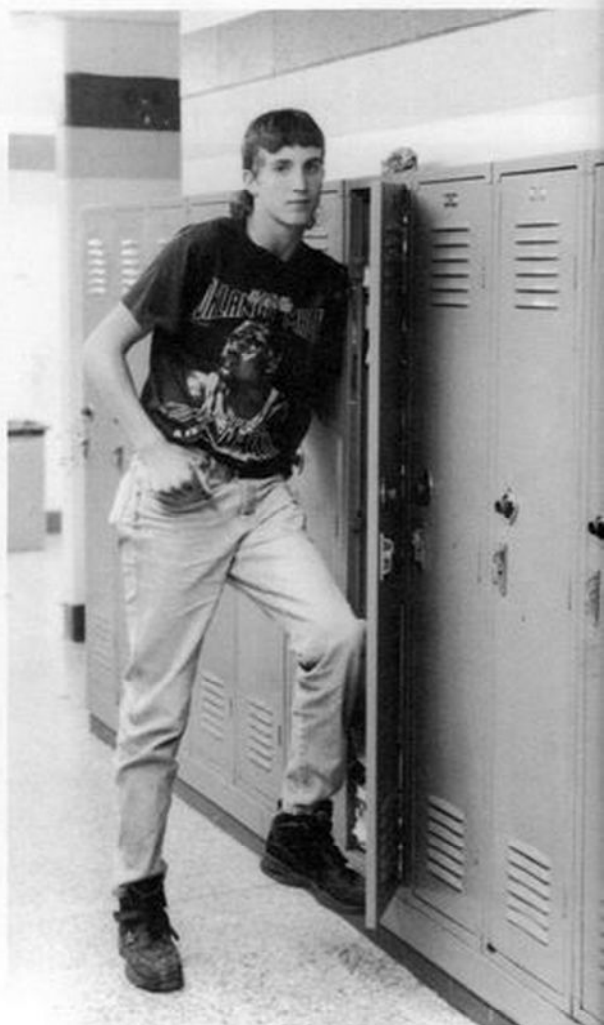

There was a wide variety of music listened to this year, including country, rock, and heavy metal. Walkmans seemed to be the "in" thing for students to listen to during their free time.

Generally everyone has almost the same basic hairstyle. Most of the girls wear their hair down, up in a barrette, or pulled up in a ponytail. Guys, on the other hand, aren't real worried what their hair looks like, just the simple combed down look with a hat suits them just fine.

Sophomore Jason Morris looks like he's comfortable on the bench in his teeshirt, Levi's, and tennis shoes.

Leaning up against his locker, posing for fashion, is freshman Chad Taylor.

While emptying his tray, junior Morgan Dale shows us the wintery look of his jeans, jacket, and scarf with his book bag over his shoulder.

Nikki Alikakos, junior, shows the very comfortable look of a long dress and sandals.

Sophomore Spencer Mitchem shows us his stylish look of bermuda shorts, teeshirt, tennis shoes, and the "slick head."

variety of students who attend
PCHS make it easy to fit
in. No matter what your interests, you find something to become involved in. Students can participate in a sport or become a member of the many different clubs available. In the morning, between classes, and at lunch, friends can be seen talking and having fun. Whatever you may become involved in, the best things are the good friends you make.

Making A Difference

Some of the most important people at PCHS are the faculty. They play a big part in the operation of the school. A teacher's job is more than just rules and textbooks; he or she is a role model for many people.

The knowledge a student obtains in class does not come from a textbook alone; it comes from the teacher's understanding and communication to the class.

On our school's 25th anniversary, we salute the four teachers who have been here all those years: Mrs. Lyla Howell, Mrs. Reta Rose, Mr. Kenneth Vance and Mrs. Sharon Vance.

Whether students are preparing for college or a job, they can always find classes that will help them be successful. During their freshman year, students are limited to classes they may choose to take, but each year they have the freedom to select classes of their choice. Either way, they learn skills to prepare them for the future.

Journalism and Photography

“Picture Perfect”

Preparations for the 1995 “Warrior” began on August 24 with a journalism workshop sponsored by Joy King of Herff Jones yearbooks.

This yearbook helped to refresh older members and teach new members such skills as drawing layouts, writing copy and captions, and choosing pictures for the book.

This year’s yearbook staff definitely had their work cut out for them in order to meet each upcoming deadline.

Senior pictures were taken in August with underclassmen being photographed in October.

The cover sketch was designed to represent PCHS’s twenty-fifth anniversary, and our theme was chosen as “Reflections of Our Past.”

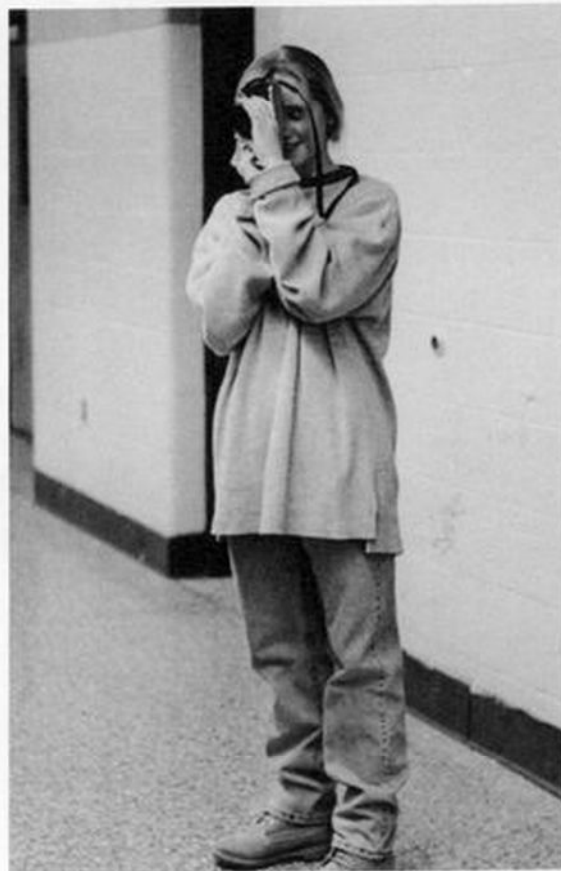

Ad sales proved profitable with the help of local establishments and merchants from Pocahontas, Greenbrier, and Randolph counties.

Yearbook sales began in January and progressed slowly, but as we rolled into the month of February, purchases picked up some.

The yearbook staff, as well as the photographers, put in a hard year’s work to make the twenty-fifth edition of “The Warrior” the best ever.

Senior Ashley Jolly tries to think of the perfect captions for her English/Social Studies layout.

Debbie Beverage writes copy before the upcoming deadline.

Math and Science

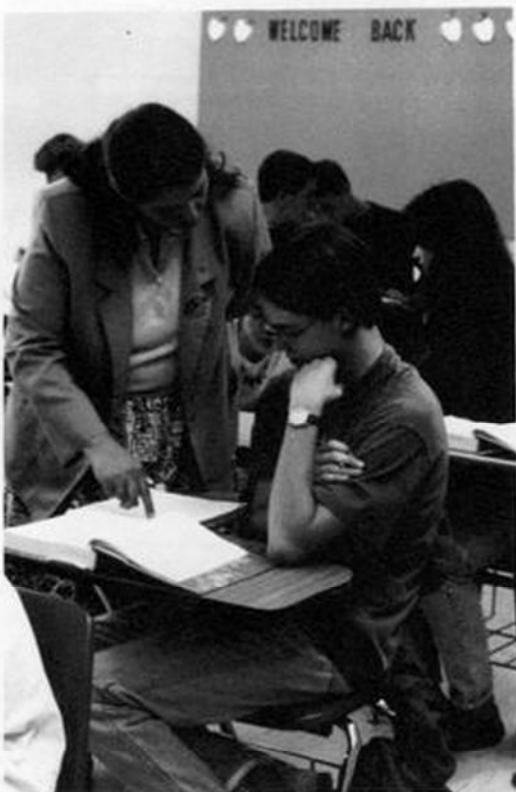

Formulas for Life

Math and Science classes can only be what you make them. A student must have 2 math and 2 science credits to graduate. There was a wide variety of math classes offered, taught by Mr. Shank, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. McGee, and Mr. Tupper. The classes were Pre-Algebra, Algebra 1, Algebra 2 and Geometry being offered as honor classes, and Trig-Pre-calculus. The students with extra ability in math were able to attend the Math Field Day competition.

Beginning this school year, Biology and Physical Science classes were combined into one class called Integrated Science, which is now taught through the 10th grade. This combination was brought by the West Virginia curriculum. The Integrated Science classes were taught by Mrs. White and Mrs. Sharpes.

Other interesting science classes offered were: Anatomy/Physiology taught by Mrs. White, Physics, Chemistry and Honors Chemistry taught by Mrs. Burns, and Environmental Science taught by Mrs. Sharpes. Students who wanted to get a little more involved with science were able to join the Science Club.

Wondering if the bell will ever ring is junior Chris Alonzo as he gets a little extra help from Mrs. McGee.

Rachel Sheets, senior, works hard on her physics experiment using a photogate.

Freshman Lindsay Barb doesn't seem real pleased with the work she has been given.

Juniors Jeremy Ulderich, Mike Sumner and Jason Underwood seem to be working hard in their 6th period Trig class.

Giving his Integrated Science project a close look is freshman Ben Moore.

English and Social Studies

Events of the Past

English and Social Studies are required subjects. In fact, four years of English and three years of Social Studies are necessary for students to graduate from PCHS.

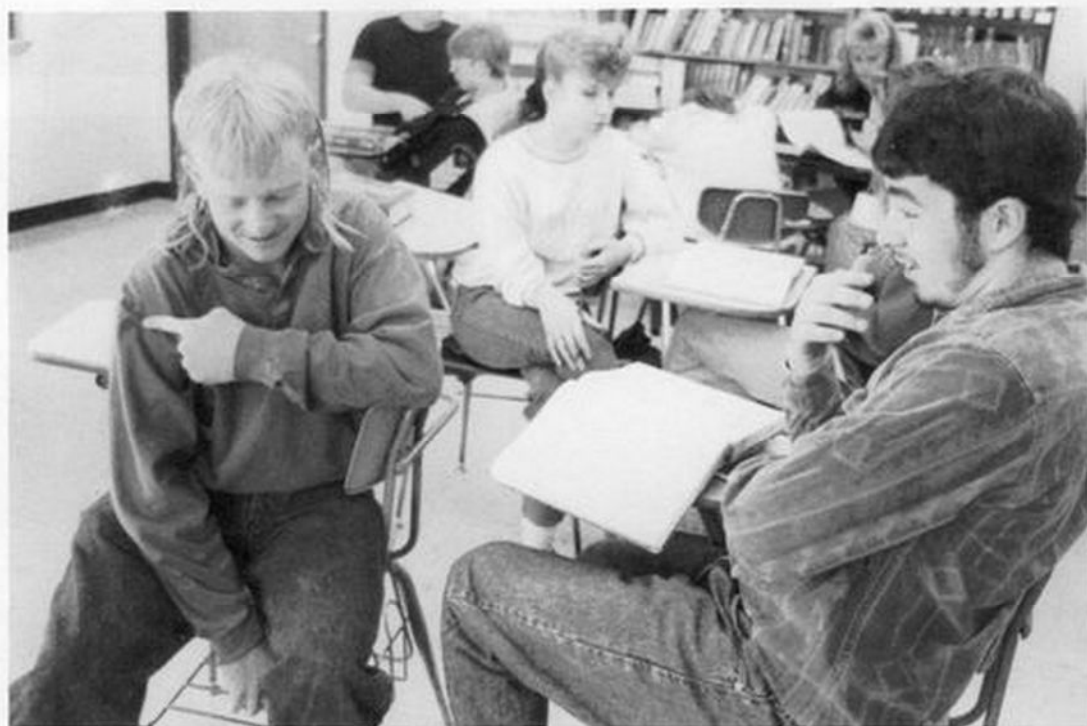

The English and Social Studies departments were very busy this year. In Senior English, the classes prepared for college and career choices. Junior English classes worked on writing autobiographies, letter writing skills, and developing a background in American literature.

Sophomore and freshmen both practiced writing business letters and even wrote their own children's stories, which were sent to the elementary schools to be illustrated by the students there.

Social Studies classes covered many areas of history this year. Geography and ancient cultures were two of the topics of discussion for the World History classes.

In American History I, students studied history from its beginning until the early 1900's. American History II students were taught about both the World Wars, the Great Depression, and the time period between 1920-1980.

Seniors Andy Beverage and Jason Robinson discuss their assignment in first period English.

Tessa Sharp, Anna Brooks, Stephanie Arbogast, and Heather Johnson learn about the past in Mrs. Keller's World History class.

Nancy Jo Mullens, senior, decides on her future with the help of the Guidance Information System in the computer lab during seventh period English.

Ray Fox, Randy Friel, and Erik Heinemann work persistently to finish their work during American History class.

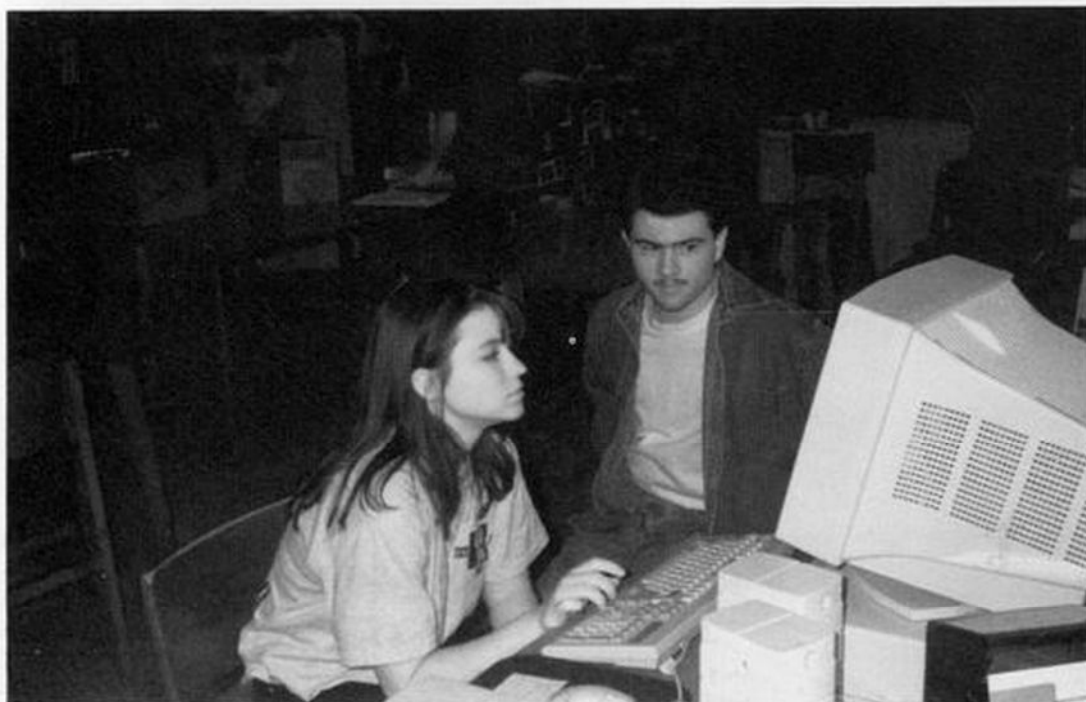

Homeroom Arianna Browning concentrates on answering the questions out of her book before the bell rings in Mrs. Vance's class.

Gifted, College, ESSH On Their Way

This year the Enrichment, Gifted and Honors have been working on many projects. They have had a unit on ethics and heroes. They also had a guest speaker, Richard Flemming. They have a really good program called the "Mentor Program." The Mentor Program enables twelfth grade students in the Enrichment Gifted programs to spend part of the school day with a professional sponsor in the community or school community for an-depth exploration of a career and/or more in-depth study in the student's area of interest. The students spend a designated time each week with the mentor in an intern-type situation, which will allow the students time to explore the career or to more fully develop talents. The success of the program is based on a close one-to-one relationship between the mentor, student, and the supervisors of the program. The program has grown throughout the three years it has been in operation, from 3 students in the first year to 12 this year. Mrs. Vance feels that this will help the students to begin their lives in "the real world."

Seniors Ruthana McNeel and Tom Stewart look a little stumped by the work they are doing on the computer.

Mrs. Flegel and seniors Laura Wagner and Martha McComb look interested in what is being showed in their College English class.

Michelle Stewart, senior, concentrates hard as she works on her college trig class.

Lost in his work is Junior Jason Rolleston.

Business and Computers

The Business Education Department was busy this year with over 200 students in their classes.

Offered were Keyboarding I and II, Accounting I and II, Word Processing I and II, and Office Technology.

These classes were popular because of the growing need for workers educated in the business field.

The Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) take an annual trip to Charleston to the State Leadership Conference in April where their club members compete in about 20 different activities against other FBLA clubs.

The Business Education teachers are Mrs. Linda Stewart and Mrs. Teresa Rhea.

The computer lab is popular with the students and faculty. It is used for English, Math, Science, History and many other class assignments. Some people just come in to play with the paint workshop.

Senior Doug Cassell types away during his sixth period Keyboarding II class with Mrs. Stewart.

Freshman Karen Ray concentrates on her typing in Mrs. Rhea's sixth period Keyboarding I class.

In Andy Beverage's sixth period class with Mrs. Stewart, he works on Advanced Word Processing as an independent study.

Heather Smith keeps a finger on her place in her seventh period Word Processing I class with Mrs. Stewart.

Senior Rosalie Morris seems enthralled with her English assignment in the computer lab.

Vo-Ag and Forestry

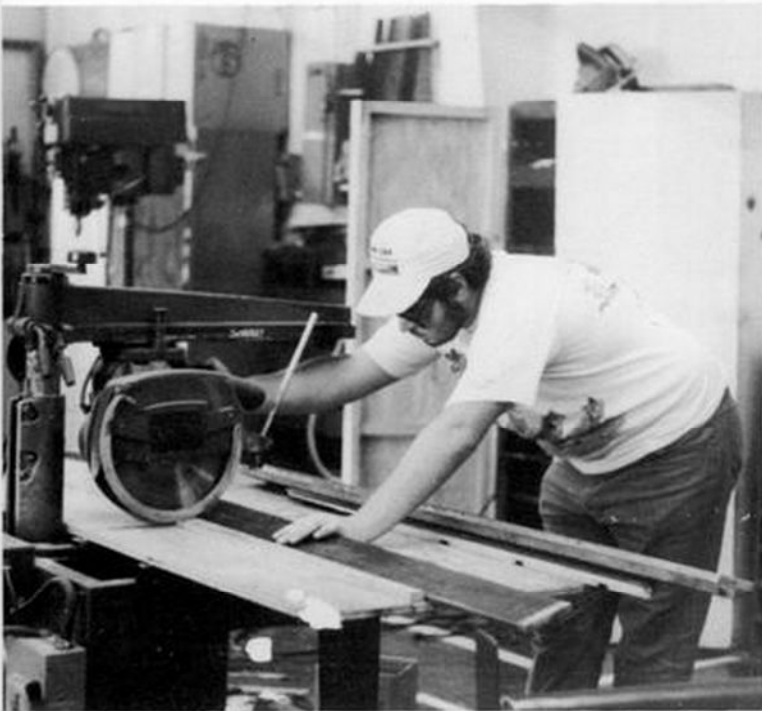

Chainsaws and Chippewas

Forestry and Vo-Ag are two of the most extraordinary classes at Pocahontas County High School for a couple of reasons, one being that there is actual work involved, not just going by the books. The students in Forestry do lots of projects outside such as cruising timber, learning about topographic maps, learning how to operate a chainsaw and other machinery properly, cutting wood for surrounding neighbors, doing odd jobs outside, and learning how to identify types of trees.

At the end of the year the students usually show how much they've learned during the annual Forestry Field Day.

Vo-Ag is similar, but it mostly involves plants and shopwork. The activities that take place are keeping record books, working in the greenhouse, growing different kinds of plants, and building haywagons. Another huge part of Vo-Ag is FFA (Future Farmers of America), which is a club that has judging teams that travel to WVU for state competition and then to Kansas City if they place first at WVU. A couple of the categories are poultry and plant pathology.

Sawing a board for Miss Poole's Vo-Ag class is Junior Jimmy Simmons.

Practicing their recipes for deer jerky are senior Chris Rose and Junior Jamie Warner.

...erving Mr. Burns demonstrate how to measure the amount of acres
Jason Carver, Emily Mitchell, and Nicole Mitchell.

PLANT A TREE!

Wrapping the poinsettias in the greenhouse is junior Anita Arbogast.

Practicing land-judging for Vo-Ag I are freshmen Chad Taylor, Justin Elza, Jason Brock, and Travis Burner.

Carpentry and Welding . . . Trades for the Future

Carpentry is a vocational class offered at Pocahontas County High School. It is taught by Mr. Taylor, and students get credit for a two-hour block. In Carpentry the students learn wood-building skills that enable them to do projects at the school and in the community. This year the carpentry classes have helped to build the new firehouse at Green Bank, an addition onto the picnic shelter at Seneca State Forest, and the new bleachers at Seneca State Forest, and the new bleachers at the school. Mr. Taylor, who has many years experience in carpentry, shows the students skills that will be useful now and in the future.

Welding is also a vocational class offered that is taken in two-hour blocks. It is taught by Mr. Thompson. The different types of welding that the students are introduced to in Welding I, and continue to learn more about in Welding II, are Shielded Manual Arc Welding, Metal Inert Gas Welding, and Tungsten Inert Gas Welding.

Both carpentry and welding give the students skills that will provide them with opportunities in the future.

Trampus Warner uses a cutting torch to cut a piece of metal.

Mr. Thompson watches intently as welding student Danny Vandevender works and Chris Gibson, Jason Shina-berry, Jody Alderman, Mike Gibson, and Chris Rose pose for the camera.

Electricity and Electronics . . . "Making Connections"

Electronics and Electricity are two classes offered by the vocational department at PCHS. These classes offer hands-on experiences and training in these fields.

Intro students also learn Ohm's law and basic wiring skills. First and second year students utilize this information to their advantage as the jobs become VICA Chapter Business Procedures Team: Ashley Jolly, Jason Robinson, Curtis Browning, Josh Bond, Jody Alderman, Missy Evans, Charlene Hamilton, and Sara Peacock.

VICA Chapter Display competitor Donnie Ervine receiving medal.

Josh Bond, Chad Kizer, and Eric Furr working on their lab during first period.

Driver Ed., P.E., and Health

A lot of students at PCHS love Driver Education. It is one of the most popular subjects. Students grades 9-12 can join if they are 16 or will be 16 during the semester, with seniors having the first option, then juniors, sophomores, and freshmen. Fifteen-year-olds are able to enter if they have permits. Mrs. Wiley is very brave to take off in the Driver Education car with some unexperienced drivers, but later on they do show improvement.

Physical Education and Health are joined together in a certain way. Everyone is required to take one class of Physical Education and Health. In Physical Education, Mrs. Rose tries to keep her students in shape by playing games, exercising, and, of course, running.

Health, on the other hand, is a subject everyone needs. Everyone needs to learn about his or her body and how their systems work. Some say it’s boring, but others find it interesting. Mrs. Rose and Mr. Hill try to keep their Health classes interesting. They give their students worksheets, notes, and show them videos. Mrs. Rose and Mr. Hill also love to give their students tests after every chapter; but doesn’t every teacher?

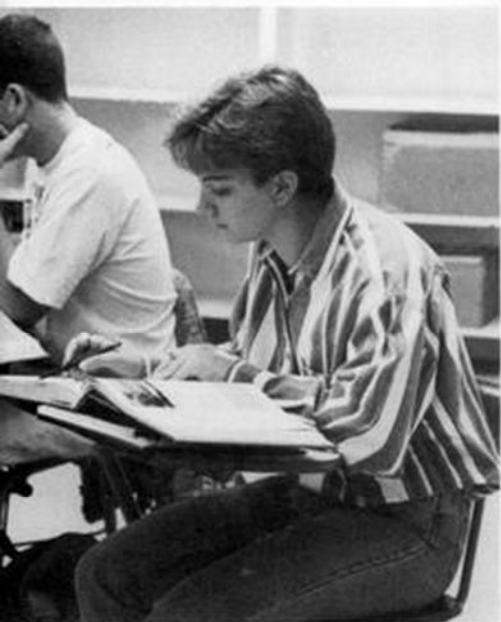

Getting ready to take Mrs. Wiley for a wild ride is junior Mindy Miles.

omore Chanda Hill looks like she needs a break from g notes in her 6th period Health class.

concentrating hard on their health worksheets are soph-
res Chris McClure, Jason Morris, Kris Nutter, Randy and senior Andrea Kinnison.

During her 7th period gym class, Mrs. Rose is watching closely to see who gets put out in warball, while the others wait to start a new game.

Special Education and Alternative . . . Helping Hands

Special Education consists of a variety of classes that are taught by Mrs. Taylor, Mr. Herold, and Mrs. Nelson.

Some of the classes taught are Social Studies, Physical Science, Health, and Math. These are basic classes taught to students that need a little extra help according to their learning abilities. In these classes, each student gets extra help and one-on-one instruction from the teacher.

These Special Ed. classes do extra activities to raise money for field trips. During lunch shifts they sold hand-dipped ice cream and freshly popped popcorn to fund a trip to Virginia Beach and one to Snowshoe for horseback riding.

In Mrs. Beverage's JTPA Alternative classes, the students work on job-seeking and job-keeping skills, academics, and GED preparation. They become prepared for the transition from school to the work world.

Working out by playing basketball is freshman Jason Potter.

Serving ice cream at lunch are Special Ed. Aide Mrs. Williams and sophomore Phyllis McCray.

John Via and Travis Keatley work on assignments in Mrs. Beverage's Alternative class.

Home Economics and Library . . . Preparing for the Future

The P.C.H.S. library offers quiet surroundings to study and research. It supplies students with a unique variety of information and programs, including books and computers. The computer lab gives each individual department, such as English, math, Spanish, and French, an interaction to explore and strengthen their computer skills as well as their knowledge of class material. It also offers a library science class that teaches students to organize books and help others in general areas.

Home Economics is an important vocational class. It teaches the basics of nutrition, cooking, sewing, management, and child care; but it goes beyond this to learning adult responsibility, decision-making, and how to prepare for the "real world." It is not only a cooking and sewing department, it has expanded to hospitality, quick foods, and front desk courses. In March, the Hospitality classes went to Snowshoe and to the Greenbrier in Lewisburg. The classes toured these two resorts. They noticed the front-desk skills and the over-all hospitality.

Terri Auldrige concentrates hard on her measurements for a piece of clothing.

Surprised to see the camera in the library is Mandy Beverage.

Senior Doug Cassell takes a break to look at the extra pictures being sold in the library.

Senior Ron Willfong works hard as a library aide.

Glenda Teter, senior, cuts out her fabric for her shorts.

Art and Foreign Language

Two Rewarding Courses

The Foreign Language and Art departments were busy this year with trips to exciting places, new equipment, and competitions.

The Spanish class visited Charleston to watch "The Barber of Seville" and took the National Spanish Exam in March.

The French class went to see "Cyrano De Bergerac" in Charleston, had an "Immersion Overnight," where they spoke nothing but French for 18 hours, 34 students competed in the National French Competition, and they also studied French music, drama, art, and practiced creative writing. Thirty students visited Quebec in June for one week.

The Art classes were awarded money by the Pocahontas County Arts Council and the Board of Education to pay for two new pottery wheels, a slab roller, and a pottery instructor. The classes also took a trip to Pittsburgh to visit the Carnegie Art Museum.

Art Design studied art criticism and history, careers in art, line, shape, form, and many other things. Advanced art had a 9-weeks assignment and broadened their skills learned in art design.

Sophomore Chanda Hill has a discussion with Mrs. Leary in her fourth period Art class.

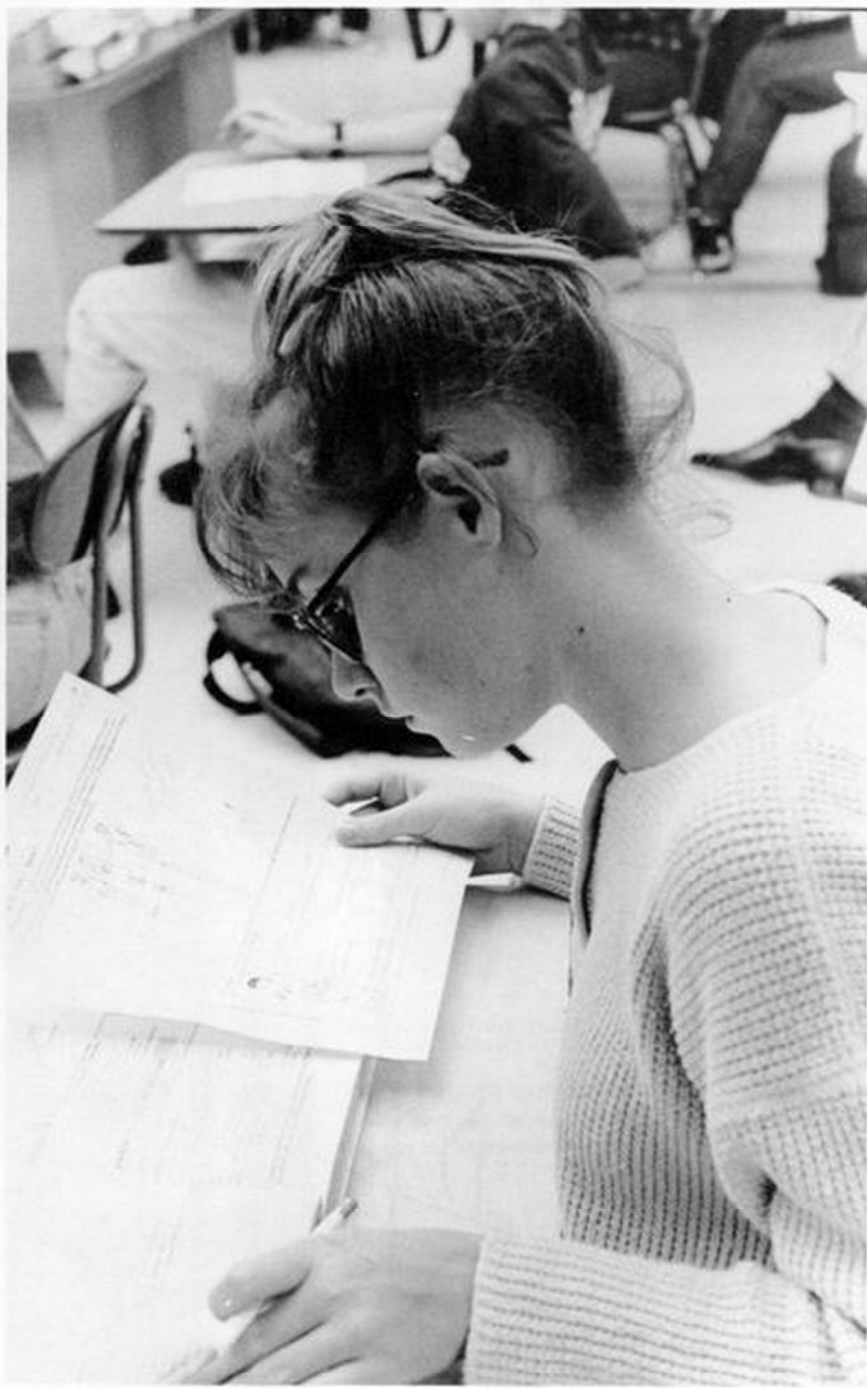

Senior Leanna Alderman and sophomore Elizabeth Clark concentrate on their projects in fifth period Art class.

Aaron Cumashot, junior, puts the finishing touches on his nine weeks assignment in Art.

Freshman Autumn Totten concentrates intently on her French work.

Homerooms Eric Heinemann, Cindy Jackson, and Katrina Richards seem to be having a blast making hats in fifth period French class.

Pocahontas County High School Warrior Band and Choir

"Music to our Ears"

1994-95 was a "year of excellence" for the Warrior Band and Choir. There were 60 playing members and 12 auxiliaries in the band and 20 members in the choir.

During the year, the band attended many competitions such as Staunton Showcase of Bands. The drum major placed 3rd, and the drumline came out on top with 1st place. At the Mountain State Forest Festival, the band placed 3rd; at the Governor's Cup, a very big competition, the band placed 3rd, along with the horn line and drum major. They also placed 3rd in the Military Inspection. The band traveled to Greenbrier East High School, where they got to watch the West Virginia University Band perform along with many other bands from around the state.

The choir showed their vocal talent at both the Christmas and Spring concerts. Usually the choir doesn't get to show off, but this year they got to perform for the Women's Club and for Pocahontas Continuous Care Center, where they brought a lot of joy to the elderly people.

The hours of hard work definitely paid off for the Band and Choir.

During a time-out, the Warrior football team listens as Coach Barb talks about the next play.

Being an athlete requires hard work and dedication. Sports available to students included football, basketball, soccer, volleyball, track, and cheerleading. Many students chose to get involved in more than one sport, which required staying after school throughout most of the year. In addition, athletes must learn to manage their time in order to maintain a minimum 2.0 GPA. But the fun that the athletes had while participating in a sport and the support of the people in the community gave them at games made it all worthwhile.

As the time runs out, junior Jason Rolleston shoots to score for his team.

SOCCER

A New Sport

Pocahontas County High was introduced to a new sport in the Fall of 1994. This new sport was soccer, and it brought a great deal of excitement to the school and to the fans.

Both males and females have the opportunity to play soccer; however, Marcy Walker was the only girl on the team.

Soccer practice started in the sizzling summer heat. September 3 was the first game of the season. The Warriors knocked off Phillip Barbour 5 to 2. As the season progressed, these "first-year" Warriors seemed to have more ups than downs, ending their season with an over-all record of 7-3. This was truly amazing for a first-year team.

The leading scorers for the Warriors were Aaron Cumashot, Willi Eilers, and Jud Eilers.

Mr. Zeigler was the outstanding coach for the soccer team. He said, "We had a good season, it was fun!"

During half-time, goalie Jason Rolleston takes a much-needed rest.

Girls Basketball '94

"Pass The Ball"

"Willing to win" describes our 1994-1995 Girls Basketball team. They had some good and close games throughout the season. They were a young team with only three Seniors, Rachel Sheets, Mary Ann Carter and Laura Simmons. These three played basketball all four years and have done a great job. Sophomore Shannon Barnisky was all-tournament player.

From the beginning of practice in August through the end of the season, the girls worked really hard and strived to have a winning season. The JV record was 4-9, Varsity 8-14. Coaches Robert Sheets and Michael Shank worked with the freshmen to help them feel comfortable with the rest of the team. The girls could never do it without their help.

Senior Rachel Sheets passes the ball to sophomore Crystal McCarty, while sophomore Lora Calhoun and freshman Ginger Beverage guard their opponents.

Warrior Style!

There were high expectations on the football team. With last year's team going 7-3 to the state playoffs, they had a tough act to follow. Many fans were skeptical as to whether the team would do as well. Although many of the key players had graduated, several prominent ones remained. The team had experienced coaching talents with Delmos Barb and Jerry Buzzard, who were inspirational leaders.

The Warriors started out with a bad luck streak, losing four straight games. That all changed when they defeated the Richwood Lumberjacks, a team the school hadn't beaten in the past seven years. That victory got the Warriors on the warpath, and they pulled off four consecutive wins.

With a devastating loss to Southern Garrett, the chance for the state playoffs was over. The emotional highs and lows of the season didn't dampen the players' enthusiasm and love for the sport.

CHEERLEADING

Enthusiasm All Year Round!

"Offense, move that ball, go!" "Offense, move that ball, go." was one of the many cheers the 1994-95 Varsity Cheerleaders brought home from cheerleading camp. The cheerleaders traveled to Charleston in August to spend three hard-working days at the NCA Cheerleading Camp. The cheerleaders received the Most Improved Trophy as well as a superior blue ribbon. Sharon Morgan said, "It was a lot of hard work, but we had tons of fun!"

The cheerleaders have the longest sport season. It starts with football, girls basketball, and ends with boys basketball. Along with practicing for these games, they also had to practice for competition, plan Spirit Week, do pep rallies, and raise money.

Cheerleading involves trust and teamwork. All cheerleaders pulled together to make things work and to get things done. They showed spirit and enthusiasm all year to help raise school spirit.

Shooting For A Brighter Future

Boys Basketball 1994-95

The 1994-95 Boys Varsity Basketball team started their season in a consistent fashion. "Unfortunately," stated Coach Robert Sheets, "we were consistently bad and lost our first seven games." The team showed determination and courage, however, and their final record was 7-15. This included wins over Greenbrier West, newly-formed James Monroe, and Petersburg. The team had no senior players, and Coach Robert Sheets said, "The future looks bright."

Sophomore center Luke Bennett led the Warriors with averages of 15 points per game and 8 rebounds; he was named to the AA All-State Honorable Mention Squad and the All Inter-Mountain Team. He and fellow sophomore Jim Holbert were named to the Sectional All-Tournament Team.

The Junior Varsity Squad finished the year with a record of 7-9. The team showed great improvement during the season, winning five of their final seven games.

Volleyball

Spike It!

The 1995 Volleyball Season started off with a new coach, Kristi Matheny, and a new attitude. Kristi, who played volleyball for four years in high school, had the experience needed to coach a successful team.

There were tryouts for a week, and by the end of the week, varsity and J.V. teams were picked. All of the girls were excited and ready to play. A positive attitude is another key to a successful team. The varsity team ended the season with a record of three wins and eleven losses, and the J.V. record was one and three.

As the team heads toward further transition with five seniors graduating, the remaining players maintain a positive outlook. The five seniors who played were: Mary Ann Carter, Ruthanna McNeel, Sara Peacock, Laura Simmons, and Marcy Walker. We wish the volleyball program continued success!

TRACK

The Race is On!!

On Your Mark, Get Set, Go!

The 1995 track season turned out to be excellent for the PCHS track team.

There are many events which the track team members can participate in, such as: 100-, 200-, 400-, and 800-meter runs, 4x100, 200, 400, and 800-meter relays, shot put, discus, long jump, mile- and two-mile runs, shuttle hurdles, 300-meter intermediate hurdles, and 100-meter high hurdles.

This year the team travelled to Nicholas County, Webster County, Oak Hill and Fayetteville. During the Fayetteville meet, Tasha Combs set a new school record in the 1600-meter run and the 800-meter run. Tasha was named high individual winner among all female competitors.

On May 26, & 27 the track team travelled to the State Competitions in Charleston. During that meet Randy Friel placed 9th in the 800-meter run in 2:03, Sarah Weadon placed 11th in the hurdles with a time of 50:8, and Tasha Combs placed 1st in the mile run with an excellent time of 55:26 and also placed 2nd in the 800-meter run with 2:29 as her time. Congratulations!

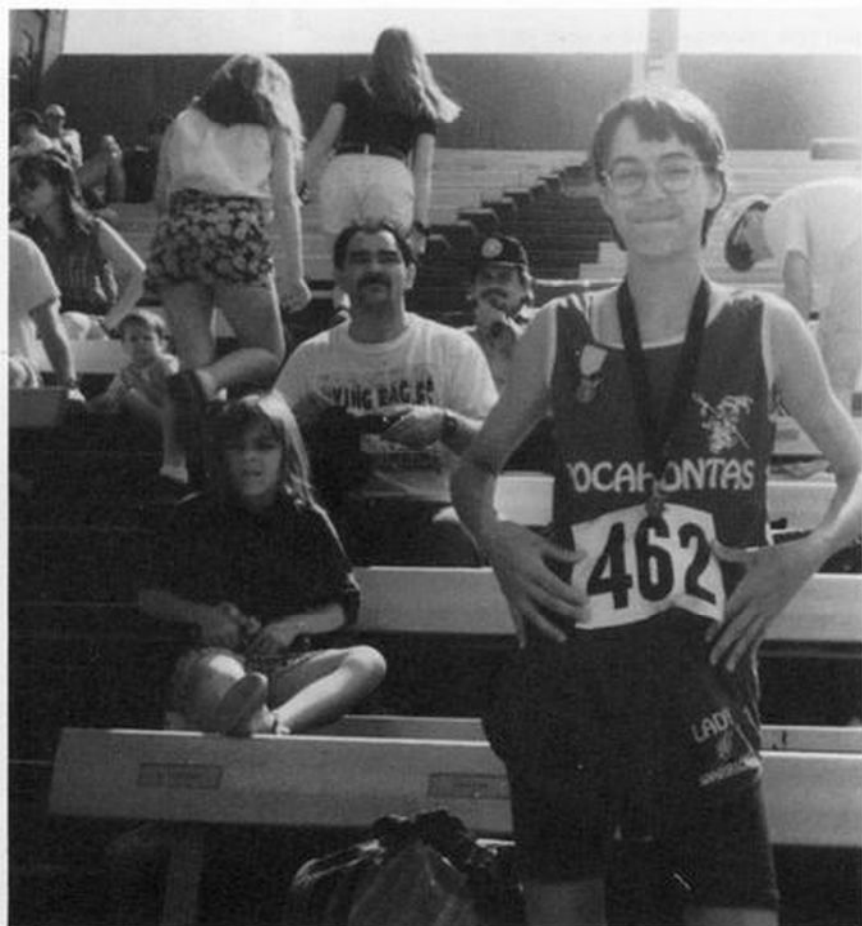

The members of the shuttle hurdle team who went to the state track meet are seniors Mary Ann Carter, Laura Simmons, sophomore Katie Keller, senior Laura Wagner, and sophomore Katrina Richards.

Sophomore Katie Keller shows perfect form while hurdling the first leg of the shuttle hurdle relay at the state track meet.

Freshman Tosha Combs is proud of her first-place medal in the 1600-meter run and her second place medal in the 800-meter run.

Sophomores Randy Friel, Phillip Anderson, and Chris Cole take time to stretch out before running the 4x800-meter relay at Oak Hill.

Runnin' With the Pack

Sarah Weadon, junior, waits patiently for the beginning of the 4X800 relay.

Junior Mandy Snyder and sophomore Katie Keller are "just chillin'" as they wait for the next heat.

Freshman Abbie Flegel anxiously waits the start of the 4X400-meter relay

GRADUATING CLASS OF 1995

On Friday, June 2, 105 seniors said their last farewell to PCHS. After 13 years of hard work, disappointments, happiness, and hopes, they finally reached their graduating year. Through the year seniors were busy deciding what school they wanted to attend or where they were going to work, and some were even planning their weddings.

The final week of school for the seniors was a busy one. First senior class members travelled to the New River for their senior trip of white-water rafting. On Thursday, June 1, the seniors had their brunch, graduation practice, and went on to Awards Day, where many of the seniors received scholarships, awards, and recognition.

On graduation night the seniors were nervous and happy, just as expected. They started out in the vocational building, where they put on their caps and gowns and chatted with their friends. The Honor Graduates led the procession into the gym for the long-awaited night to begin.

During the ceremony Shenda Smith sang "The Times are Changing" to the rest of her classmates. Sean McGreal gave a tribute speech to Richard Allen Kincaid, a fellow classmate who passed away during the school year.

The 1995 Valedictorians were Leanna Alderman and Thomas Stewart, and the Salutatorian was Rachel Sheets.

June 2, 1995 is a date that will stick with the class of 1995 for the rest of their lives. From the student body, GOOD LUCK!!

Congratulations
